Overview

This American History course is divided into two trimesters. The first part covers the United States from the close of the frontier in 1877, to the rise of the industrial era, through America's ascendancy into an economic, imperial and global superpower. This part of the course will end with the 1920s.

Goals

1. A thorough understanding of how America's role in the world has evolved.
2. Identify major people & events that have shaped American foreign policy & those who are important to American History.
3. Understand & be able to explain the impact of various watershed moments.
4. Identify changes in the attitudes of the American people.
5. Understand the significance of late 19th C and early 20th C historical political decision-making & the impact on the American people.
6. Understand the connections between these aforementioned eras and the modern government & economy.
7. Identify & keep track of current events as they relate to the course.
